

AN HONEST BOXING MATCH. Tuesday night there will be a good. mest boxing match in San Francisco. foung Corbett and Battling Nelson are ighters, and neither of them has been known to fake. There is solid satisfaction in going to e a fight in which there is no Tommy or Jack Root. Fighting, ever since the world began, has been the most interesting of sports. The ants, when they found things growlog dull and wanted amusement, started wars. Boxing is play-fighting. A big boxing match between two well-trained and skilful fighters (who will not fake) is as fine a spectacle as modern times can afford. Football, the rougher sport, urnishes a great spectacle too, but the confused whirling of masses of men cannot be fellowed with the eye as well as the swift movements of the

This fight between Young Corbett and Sattling Nelson will be worth seeing. Battling Nelson will be worth seeing.
Both are sturdy and honest fighters, and both are going in to win. There is one thing that absolutely guarantees hot fight. Corbett must make up for his defeat by Britt, and unless he beats Nelson, Britt will not give him another match. Nelson is a newcomer. He has yet to be headed. Although he has been fighting for a comparatively short time he has whipped some of the est little men in the ring. If he whips Corbett, then he will have a chance to ight Britt. If he can whip Corbett it is not impossible that he can whip britt too, and then he will be right in ne for the light-weight title.

incentive in this Corbett-Nelson fight is not the purse. It is the entire uture success of each fighter.

Nelson has all the confidence in the world. He has bet all of his ready money on himself, and he has even tried to persuade the club to let him a part of the purse on himself cry Corbett's, before the fight.

to take off a pound a day until Tuesnight to make the required 130. That is a strain on a little man, espectally when it comes after a slege of hard training. It shows that Corbett is a light-weight by right. He is not a feather-weight, and he has not been for years. Britt is not the feather-weight champion, and neither has Corbett ever held the title. Britt is champion of that, irregular class.

such another gold brick. The fight was in Lou Houseman's club. Houseman was, and still is, Rcot's manager. At that time the Chicago papers gave Houseman and his prize fakir and Faker Tommy Ryan sufficient publicity to protect those who did not see the match from being taken in by any future fake in which Ryan and Root might engage. Still both men have boxed since then in Chicago.

It is a safe bet that neither of them will ever appear publicly again in Philadenhia.

Little Denverite, who is in Magnificent Physicial Condition, Easily Puts an Aspiring Amateur to Sleep.

(Special to The Evening World.)
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 26.-Young Corbett scored a knockout yesterday and, although the beaten man was an amateur, it did the hearts of lookerson good to see the little fellow drop

Frank George was his name, and he weighed at least 150 pounds. He was an aspiring pugilist who had graduated an aspiring puglist who had graduated from the amateur ranks and had a fond idea he could trim Corbett. He tors victously at the Denver lad for two rounds and kept the latter busy blocking and ducking heavy punches.

In the third round an extra heavy wallop landed on the exchampion's nose and Corbett lost his temper. He feinted with his left, and stepped in with a right uppercut that sent Mr. George on his back and into a corner. When he came to Corbett was boxing with ancame to Corbett was boxing other amateur who possessed but did not lack wisdom.

Corbett was later examined by Dr.
Appel, the club's physician, and the redice found the little fighter in magnificent condition. He weighed 183 pounds.
Tell my friends on Broadway," said Young Corbett, "that I am working hard, that I have cut out betting on horse races, automobiles and other pastimes and am attending strictly to my knitting. I will win because I want to fight Britt next month, and I'll fight
him even if he weighs a ton.
Manager Murphy announced to-day that if Young Corbett was a quarter of a pound over weight he would not allow Nelson to fight him.
Nelson is working daily with elever
Eddie Santry and Frank Rafael.
Santry is to meet Jack Cordell, a native
son, in a tep-round bout.
